

Exams Exams

That dreadful period of exams is here
Outside and inside, temperatures are soaring
Tensions with and from the parents is always there
The 360° pressure on the child is rising.

The pressure to obtain top rank in exams
And top percentile in the competitiveness
Thus securing a walk-in into top institutes
For a perceived life of high paying careers.

Exams is all about realizing dreams
Either of the student's or mostly of the parents
Choking the life for the future happiness
With the sole focus on studies and marks.

The preparations start many years ahead
As the competition for few seats is ridiculously high
Taking away the childhood from the child
Putting them through the grind, leaving them high and dry.

In this whole process, the child's intentions are forgotten
Their dreams and capabilities are ignored totally
No efforts to discover what they are good at, naturally
And the talents they possess in them and hidden.

For many it's about going by the mass trend
The template of life, they assume has to be followed
Not realizing these are no rules and so they can bend
For what is unique and natural to their child.

First thing, stop comparing, as each child is different
Understand what is their inherent strength
It's not easy to find out that and needs much effort
Requiring early experiments and sessions in length.

Focus on the all-round development of the child
Giving freedom to pursue their interests
With clear objective to set and achieve their goals
Preparing them to take with humility whatever are the results.

Given the distractions around, restrictions are required often
To be followed strictly by family members as well
Creating an enabling and focused environment for them
To succeed in their goals, exams being just a tool.

Dedicated to all family members going through the grind this exam season.
